These cookies are required to improve the website's usability, but they may nevertheless be disabled.
2. Analytics cookies: these cookies are anonymous, aggregated web analysis tools that compile information on how users use the website, how they got here, how many users there are, how long they visit for, etc. They help make improvements to the website, making access easier for users while also helping compile statistics. These cookies are not required for optimum website usability and they may therefore be disabled.
3. Third-party cookies: these cookies are installed on the user's device by third-party website operators through this website. Given that they are mainly used for analysis, third-party cookies largely come from Google Analytics. Browser settings

We would also like to inform users that they can change their privacy settings, freely and at any time, regarding the installation and use of cookies, directly through their browser by following the relevant instructions.

In particular, users may turn on "private browsing", which lets their browsers prevent their history on any websites visited from being saved, or any passwords entered, cookies or other information from the pages visited.

Please note that if users decide to disable all cookies (including technical cookies), the quality and speed of the services offered by this website might decrease considerably and users might lose access to certain sections of the website.
